Tame Lions, Wild Women.
We Crave the Strange.
In Her Husband's Pocket.
The Lady Mosquito Bites.

By Arthur Brisbane

Good-bye to daylight-saving. The farmers didn't want it, and it ends. This teaches us that when they choose to unite, the farmers are the powerful element in the country.

It also teaches that the governing mind is not elastic. It ought to have been possible to let the workers in cities begin work one hour earlier, saving an hour of daylight later, without forcing farmers to get up two hours before daylight, by changing all their milk trains. The most valuable institution goes overboard for lack of co-ordination.

Why does the human heart always crave something unnatural? The Romans wanted naval battles right in their own town, and the emperor had to give them an artificial lake, with ships fighting on it, to amuse them.

The prosperous gentleman wants strawberries in winter, pays little attention to them in summer.

These solemn reflections are inspired by a line in an advertisement by Mr. Fox, theatrical man. He announced a magnificent production, with "tame lions and wild women." It is the nature of women to be tame and of lions to be wild. But human nature wants things upside down, so the theatrical man must find lions tame and women wild to please the public.

Human nature is often dissected interestingly in public advertisements; for instance in one the following question: "What would you do if you found a letter from another woman in your husband's pocket?" you read this positive statement:

"The test of a woman's quality is how she conducts herself when she finds that another woman is stealing her husband's love."

That is interesting, but not accurate. The test of a woman's quality is when she finds herself married to a life to some dull, conceited, uninteresting person, in whom no other woman, or she, either, could possibly be interested. It takes a lot of "quality" to go through with that life program.

It is annoying, of course, to find a letter from another lady in your husband's pocket, especially if you are looking for something more valuable. But most annoying of all, and hard to bear, is a life with no excitement. That is what makes women old at fifty.

Mr. O'Donnell, general manager of the Pennsylvania railroad, says, with horror, that freight engineers are paid $392 a month, $4,704 a year, more than the salary paid the governors of thirteen states.

Passenger train engineers also get more than the governors of all those states. What of it? Is $392 a month too much for a skilled worker responsible for thousands of human lives?

Do you think the governors would do the work that the engineer does if you paid them five times the salary?

If the governors are getting too little, which the majority probably are not, pay them more. But be glad, not sorry, that the biggest, richest nation in the world is at last beginning to pay decently those that do the nation's work. If you must have low wages move to China.

The state of New Jersey announces as it does each year, that only female mosquitoes bite. The male does not bite, and poets like Kipling will tell you, in consequence, that the female of the species is more deadly than the male. Of course she is, because she has harder work to do, and greater responsibility.

The female mosquito produces the eggs, and the little mosquitoes. To do this she must have blood, good food. If she doesn't bite you, she can't have it. The father mosquito has nothing to do but buzz, and there is no reason why he should bite.

More important than the sex of the biting mosquito is the announcement that New Jersey will try to get rid of mosquitoes. If the citizens will each contribute twenty-five cents. Human foolishness is shown in the way we fight mosquitoes. New Jersey fights them one year, kills nearly all of them. Neighboring states do nothing, and the next year New Jersey gets all her mosquitoes back from the other states. If the United States would once and for all do away with mosquitoes, waging the war on a national basis, and at the same time building by way of drainage the much-needed canals, malaria, Tokio Bankers Favor Acceptance of American Proposal in East.

Military and Liberal Factions are in Determined Struggle in Empire.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

TOKIO, Aug. 25.—It is reported that at its meeting yesterday, the imperial cabinet, upholding the opinions advanced by the military element in the government decided to insist upon the exclusion of Manchuria and Mongolia from the consortium by which the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan will assume a dominant position in the finances of China. It is said that negotiations will be resumed with the powers on that basis.

The Asahi Shimbun says that Viscount Uchida, foreign minister, spoke in favor of Japan's unconditional entrance into the consortium, explaining that if Manchuria and Mongolia were excluded from the scope of the agreement it might be interpreted as showing Japanese designs upon China and might obstruct loans which are urgently needed by China.

He is reported to have expressed the belief that such an impression would be inimical to the interests of Japan and might place the nation in a position of complete isolation, adding that on the contrary Japan's unconditional adherence would remove suspicions on the part of China and the powers concerning Japan's supposed aggressiveness as a result of the acquisition of important interests.

It is understood that leading bankers now are urging the acceptance of the American proposal but the military groups fear to jeopardize special political interests in Manchuria and Mongolia.

TOKIO, Aug. 25.—A quiet, but determined struggle now is under way in Japan between the military and reactionary forces of the empire and the liberals over the general question of China.

The bureaucrats insist that Japan should resign all special preferential rights she has hitherto gained in China, and oppose concessions urged by groups which seek to calm world opinion concerning Japan's alleged aggressiveness.

The diplomatic advisory council yesterday discussed the Shantung and Consortium questions.

According to the newspapers, several members criticized the foreign office for undertaking to abandon an exclusive Japanese settlement of the Shantung matter without consulting the council which is supposed to advise the government in such matters.

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 25.—Andrew Begany, 48, and two children, Andrew, Jr., and Mary were killed and Mrs. Begany and two other children were seriously injured when their automobile was struck by a New Castle Interurban car here late yesterday.

The yellow fever and vile discomfort could be abolished.

The senate votes to investigate the news print paper industry. It would be a good idea, while interested in paper, to look into certain legislation passed by the Canadians.

Those gentlemen will not allow Americans to import wood from Canada and make it into paper, even when the Americans own the wood. Canadians are not to be blamed for doing all they can to protect their workers. That is what a government should do.

Perhaps the government of the United States can find some way, by a friendly arrangement with Canada, to give the American workers a chance.

FIVE OUTLAWS KILLED BY AMERICANS, 9 MORE TAKEN BY CARRANZISTAS

Search Still on For Army Aviators Missing in Lower California—Yankee Soldiers Cross Border in That Section.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

MARFA, Texas, Aug. 25.—Three hundred and seventy-five American cavalry men who last Tuesday entered Mexico in pursuit of the bandits who held Lieut. Harold G. Peterson and Paul N. Davis for ransom, were back on American soil today, following abandonment of the chase yesterday. The troops today resumed patrol of the border.

Heavy rains yesterday which obliterated the tracks of the bandits brought a decision to abandon the chase after contact had been made Carranza troops. The troops after riding for hours in a heavy rainstorm began at 11 o'clock to cross the river at Rocky Ford, seven miles from Rudessa.

The main column was delayed for two hours because of the storm. The cavalry slept under roofs last night for the first time since last Monday, when the expedition was formed.

During the six days the American punitive expedition was below the border four bandits were killed by the troops and another by airman while nine bandits are reported to have been captured at Coyame by Carranza soldiers. The captured bandits are said to have been members of the Jesus Renteria band which captured Lieutenants Peterson and Davis.

Lieutenants George K. Rice and L. L. Pouquet, American army aviators who were reported missing below the Rio Grande yesterday after they had left Rocky Ford for Mexico to reconnoiter for the punitive expedition, were located last night at Terlingua, Texas. They had become lost in the rainstorm and made a forced landing. Neither flier was injured.

A report brought to the border by Lieut. Peterson that Jesus Renteria, leader of the bandits was killed by American airman could not be confirmed.

The cavalry troops came out of Mexico in excellent condition and without casualties after five days hard riding.

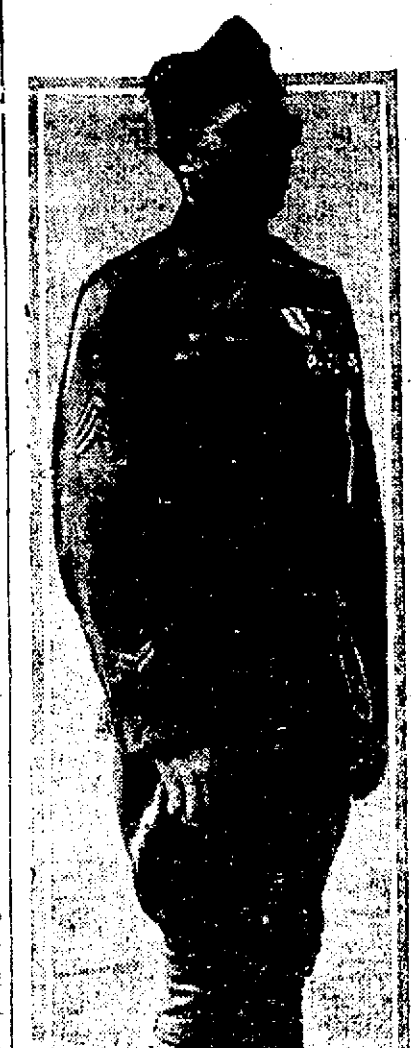

Search for Aviators

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Aug. 25.—Army aviators from Rockwell Field and troops from Fort Rosencrans, resumed today the search for Lieutenants Cecil Connelly and Frederick Waterhouse, army aviators detailed to Mexican border patrol duty, who have been missing since last Wednesday, with orders to find them dead or alive.

The aviators were expected to devote their attention to the stretch of broken and chaparral covered desert lying between Campo, in eastern San Diego county, and San Felipe, near the Gulf of California, between which points an American, employed at a mine forty miles south of Campo reported he had seen an airplane in flight Wednesday.

Two detachments of troops, carrying complete field equipment and six days' rations, have been ordered to prosecute the search southward from the border. A third detachment under Command of Captain G. O. Crank medical corps, equipped with motor truck and carrying gasoline and food for 21 days, proceeded yesterday southward by way of Tia Juana, Lower California. Captain Crank he would continue 200 miles south of Tia Juana and 60 miles inland from the Gulf of California where he would camp.

ALL OFFICERS KILLED, HE LED COMPANY TO VICTORY

The largest number of war decorations presented at one time on this side of the Atlantic was conferred on forty-four enlisted men and officers of New York regiments at New York's city hall. One of them was Sergeant Thomas J. Haynes, of Jersey City, ordered to be made a Knight of the Order of Leopold by the Belgian government. After his captain and three lieutenants were killed in the Argonne Haynes, although wounded, took command of his company and led it into a successful action.

SHOOTS HIS WIFE, THEN KILLS SELF

BUENOS, Aug. 25.—William Hagmaler, 30, shot his wife, Mrs. Rose Hagmaler, 30, twice with a shotgun, then ran to an alley and killed himself with the gun last night.

The shooting occurred at 9:30 at the millinery store of Mrs. Hagmaler, 132 North Sandusky avenue.

Hagmaler, about 9, went to the home of his mother to get his shotgun, telling her he was going into the country. He went to his wife's store, entered the side door and passed his father-in-law, Charles Vollmer, member of city council, who was with an adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Hagmaler.

Hagmaler pointed the gun at his wife, who started to run out of the front door. She received the charge in the back and fell on the sidewalk. Hagmaler fired at her again. Before police could intercept Hagmaler, he ran to a back alley and shot himself.

PACKERS' HEARD BEFORE SENATE BODY MONDAY

Swift's Research Manager Alleges Gross Inaccuracies in Reports

ASSAILS KENYON ACT

Big Concerns Handle Less Than 50 Percent of the Meat Products

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)

WASHINGTON, August 25.—Further inflation of foodstuff prices would result from the passage of the Kenyon bill to regulate and license the packing industry, L. D. H. Weld, manager of the commercial research department of Swift & Company, testified today before the senate agriculture committee where the bill is under consideration.

"The main objection to the bill," Mr. Weld said, "is in the fact that it was based upon reports of the federal trade commission, which are saturated with glaring inaccuracies and misstatements. This would be serious enough, but the matter does not rest there, because the bill, if passed, will further inflate the already high cost of living."

"Elemental facts in the meat business," Mr. Weld said, "proved that the packers' profit on meat transactions was about two cents on a dollar."

"The Kenyon bill must either interfere with the farmers' end of meat production, or the packers' part of the business if designed to affect the high cost of living," he said. "If the farmer is hit, he will cut down production, which will bring higher stock prices. If the packer is hit and his business crippled, the result will be higher manufacturing costs and these, too, will have to be passed on."

Mr. Weld paid his respects to Commissioner Colver of the trade commission, a previous witness, remarking that "many of his statements here were exaggerated and inaccurate."

Swift & Company owned no retail stores in England, and Mr. Weld said he had been unable to find that any other American packer did so. "Mr. Colver came in here and told you gentlemen that the five large packers controlled over 75 per cent of the business in hides," he continued.

"They handle less than 50 per cent, and I assure you there is the keenest competition among all of them."

"He told you that packers handled 700 commodities. Let me reveal to you some of the processes by which he reached this figure. He mentioned as separate items butterine, oleomargarine and oleo. All three are the same. He took 23 cuts of beef and listed them as 23 items. He gave 155 items as a list of by-products of cattle dressing. He mentioned 37 items of sausage."

"Mr. Colver made the flat statement that the packers have not put any new capital into the business from outside sources since 1904. Swift & Company alone has added $85,000,000 new cash capital from sales of shares. Mr. Colver persistently ignored the number of packing concerns in business in this country. Some 335 concerns are engaged in interstate business besides the big packers, and moreover several hundred concerns do a big local and intrastate business."

"If the Kenyon bill is passed the splendid and elaborate service given the country at large by the big packers will be interfered with in a way that will hurt everybody concerned—producers, packers and consumers."

RUSSIANS FREED

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 25.—Seventy-six Russians, arrested last Tuesday at an alleged anarchist meeting are free today as a result of action taken by federal officials late yesterday. Three of the men arrested were taken to Cleveland pending further action while others have been released previously.

OPPONENTS OF TREATY PUZZLED BY WILSON'S POSSIBLE FUTURE ACTS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—How far President Wilson may go in his fight for unconditional acceptance of the peace treaty is a subject of increasing speculation in official circles.

With the group of reservation supporters apparently determined to write their disqualifications of the League of Nations covenant into the ratification of itself, and with Republican leaders predicting that the Senate will amend outright the Shantung provision and perhaps other sections of the treaty, an interesting set of possibilities present themselves.

There has been no authoritative expression of the President's probable course should the treaty be returned to him with textual amendments or reservations written into the ratification.

He told the Foreign Relations Committee Tuesday he would consider either method of qualification as tantamount to reopening the negotiations with Germany.

Should such amendments or reservations be inserted, therefore—an eventuality, which Democratic Senators deny is likely, but which the Republicans say is certain—the next move would be up to the President.

What he would do is a question on which those who have talked with him disagree, but a discussion of what he would be authorized to do under the law and precedents reveals a general agreement that a number of courses would be open.

Summed up, these discussions contemplate that he might take up the question of changes in the treaty by diplomatic correspondence; return to Paris and ask that the peace conference be re-assembled for negotiation of a new treaty; send a new delegation to reopen negotiations; or pocket the treaty and refuse to proceed further unless the Senate receded from its position.

It is known that the alternative of an exchange of diplomatic notes with the principal powers has been suggested to the President as the most feasible by Republican Senators who have told him the treaty never could be ratified as it stands.

The assent of the smaller nations, these Senators asserted, would be obtained easily once the other members of the five principle powers have acquiesced.

PEACE TREATY IS IN CONGRESSIONAL SPOTLIGHT THIS WEEK WITH FOOD CONTROL CONTEST TO BE RESUMED IN THE LOWER HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—The peace treaty promises to hold the spot light in congress again this week with a possibility that before the week is over the report of the Foreign Relations Committee may bring the question of ratification into open senate.

Although Chairman Henry Cabot Lodge declines to make any prediction as to when the committee will report, Democratic members said today they had an understanding with the Republicans that action would be taken this week is possible.

A number of senators thought unlooked-for delay might result from the committee's decision to request additional information from President Wilson.

Today the committee resumed its open hearings, but most of the week is expected to be devoted to discussion of amendments to the treaty.

Three Senators to Speak.

Debate on the treaty also is to continue in the senate, Senators John Nugent, Idaho, Democrat; William F. Kirby, of Arkansas, Democrat, and Robert L. Owen, Oklahoma, Democrat, having given notice they would speak.

The Franco-American treaty will come before the senate judiciary committee today in connection with consideration of a sub-committee report holding the treaty to be no violation of the United States Constitution.

ment to "put teeth" in the lever food control act.

The committee has before it the amendment passed by the house, but has not decided whether to pass the house measure or to report out a new and distinct measure.

Cold Storage Plan on Calendar.

The house, having carried out one of President Wilson's recommendations for reducing living costs, will consider another this week in the Hutchinson bill to regulate cold storage of foodstuffs. The measure is modeled on the New Jersey law, which the president recommended to congress in his recent address.

Two important measures are expected to come before the senate this week in the Smoot bill for development of public oil, gas, coal and phosphate lands and in the prohibition enforcement bill. The Smoot bill probably will come to a final vote early in the week, but considerable debate is expected to precede action on the enforcement measure.

Hearings on the Kenyon-Kendrick bills to regulate the packing industry will be resumed today, with L. D. H. Weld, manager of the Commercial Research Department of Swift & Co. testifying.

March Center of Contest.

Outside of the cold-storage bill the house faces little legislation this week, although a bitter fight is expected on the measure to confer the permanent rank of General on Chief of Staff Peyton C. March.

Republican leader Frank L. Mondell hopes to bring up his bill to carry out Secretary Lane's plan to provide forms for men discharged from the military service.

HOW WEAK WOMEN ARE MADE STRONG

Mrs. Westmoreland Tells in the Following Letter.

Harrison, N. Y.—"When my first child was born I did not know about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had a very hard time. Here are two of the youngest competitors in the blonde beauty contest, held annually at Venice, the California beach resort. namited and burned bridges and railway, wrecked and destroyed by retreating Bolsheviks, into a workable railway which they manned, operated and maintained.

To these troops the British command gives much of the credit of the 75-mile advance toward Petrozavodsk. In the contingent were 36 officers and 675 men, comprising the 167th and 168th companies of railway troops as a special battalion under Major E. E. MacMoreland, Kansas City, and every kind of railroad from a superintendent to a section hand.

Miraculous Machines. The Yanks worried so fast in fact that the Bolsheviks, believing that they had miraculous machines for track laying and adjustable bridges which they dropped in as they went along. It was all done under a gale under Captain C. P. Jones of Paterson, N. J., who in Alaskan and Latin-American jobs was nicknamed "Hurricane Jones." The men worked 17 hours daily with the enemy right ahead and the British artillery right behind awaiting construction. There were also battles and skirmishes in many small sidings where on several occasions the contractors and also the train crews were under fire.

Yanks Escaped. On May 16 while building a bridge under shrapnel fire the Yanks were surrounded by Bolsheviks skimming through the woods and dynamiting the bridge three times in the rear. On the way back to repair the bridge the Yanks were again attacked at a close range but managed to escape.

The ship detachment under Captain C. E. McMillan of South America and Panama, formerly from Omaha had to transform junk pile equipment into workable rolling stock.

Then the Yanks under Captain H. G. Odell, former assistant and superintendent at Santa Fe built and operated an eight-mile street railway in Murman under Lieutenant Chas. B. Tuttle, they operated and manned an armored train.

Railroad men who formerly drew high pay in Boston, Pittsburgh or Indiana shared in making these rail yards enterprising as Yankee success.

WORKER'S GOAL STILL FAR OFF, ASSERTS WALSH

Labor Leader Blames High Prices on Profiteers, and Storage System

NEW YORK, August 25.—"The chief factors in the increased cost of living are profiteering, enormous profits in financing, and unchecked storage of foods," said Frank P. Walsh, former associate chairman of the war labor board and for many years one of the most prominent advocates of the rights of labor, in an interview today.

Mr. Walsh had been asked whether he thought the continued demands of labor for higher wages would tend to cause corresponding increases in the cost of living.

"That question," he said, "implies that there has been an increase in wages corresponding with the increase in the cost of living. That is not the case. Living costs have advanced out of all proportion to wages. Labor usually is an inconsiderable item of cost in agriculture, manufacturing and commerce."

"It would be the height of absurdity to allege that had this item of cost been doubled, which it has not, the cost of goods also should be doubled. The fact is, that only few workers, those who contribute invaluable brains and artisanship to society, have been able to have their wages kept abreast of the increased cost of living."

Labor Still in Need. "The great mass of labor is farther from obtaining decent and comfortable living conditions than ever before. The obvious reason is that manufacturers and commercial companies have retained their pre-war profit percentages."

"When food, clothing and other necessities pass through several hands and a pre-war percentage of profit is maintained in the first handling, the consumer is forced to pay profits pyramided on profits. The world would laugh at business men who doubled the cost of their goods because their rent or the price they pay for coal had been doubled, yet it takes seriously the claims that because labor has had a material thought nowhere near a 100 per cent increase, goods should double and triple in value."

"The cost of living will continue to increase as long as these shameful practices are tolerated and labor will continue to get less and less for its work."

"Profiteering is the greatest factor in the increase of living costs and the money handlers are the worst of offenders."

"The most conspicuous instance of profiteering, but one which shows in a striking way how profiteering affects every worker, is narrated by L. R. Greene, marketing expert at Notre Dame university. According to Mr. Greene a farmer in the northwest drove to a flour mill with a ton of wheat. After unloading it, he drove to another door of the same mill and bought a ton of bran, the husks of the wheat.

He paid nearly ten dollars more for the bran than he got for the wheat. He would have done better had he fed the wheat to his cattle."

A PAIR OF SNUFFERS

A gentleman spending a vacation in the Highlands was engaged one night in writing a letter in a humble abode where he had obtained accommodation. The sputtering candles annoyed him and he called out: "Mrs. McPherson, can you get me a pair of snuffers?"

"A pair of snuffers?" repeated Mrs. McPherson somewhat bewildered. "Well, I'll dae my best."

In a few minutes there was a commotion outside. Two stalwart figures shuffled in, followed by Mrs. McPherson. "This is Donald McDougall," she said, "and this is Douglas McDonald. I daise ken wha' ye want wi' them, but I'm chinkin' the twa o' them tak' mair snuff than any other twa men in the parish."

Says corns stop hurting, then lift right off without one bit of pain

Hospital records show that every time you cut a corn you invite lockjaw or blood poison, which is needless, says a Cincinnati authority, who tells you that a quarter ounce of drug called freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus without even a little twinge of pain.

You simply apply a few drops of this freezone on a tender, aching corn and the soreness is instantly relieved. Shortly the entire corn can be lifted out, root and all, with your fingers.

This drug is sticky but dries at once and is claimed to just shrivel up any corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue of skin.

If your wife wears high heels she will be glad to know of this.

DAYTON, Aug. 25.—Eight Dayton milk dealers were indicted in a report issue today of the special grand jury which has been investigating the high cost of living in Dayton for the past month.

Immediately upon being served notice of the indictment against the Dayton Ice Cream and Dairy Company, J. L. Laymon, treasurer of the company, entered a plea of guilty. The fine is from $50 to $5,000.

The charge against the milk men is that of boosting prices and operating in restraint of trade. Indictments were to be served upon the other seven companies and individuals Monday afternoon.

The Curb Market
THE SUCCESS of the first effort to establish a curb market for produce in Lima leads to the belief that if citizens and city officials will give the proper encouragement to this feature of the campaign to lower the cost of foodstuffs in Lima it will lead to permanent relief to some extent.

Dayton is one of the many cities that have had curb markets for several years and no one in Dayton would care today for the discontinuance of the practice of allowing the farmers the use of certain downtown streets three mornings of the week for retail sales.

If you will take a drive for ten miles around Lima you will realize why produce has risen to high prices here—higher than other cities the same size, by actual comparison. The reason is this—Lima has not encouraged the growing of vegetables and what is known as truck gardens.

Farmers have not been given the proper aid in disposing of what they raise. With the high price of all farm products, such as wheat, corn and hogs, there has been no incentive whatever for truck gardening.

Result—the farmers seek the lines of least resistance and Lima people pay the high prices of imported food stuffs. Encourage the curb market; keep it from getting into the hands of those who are opposed to it, and you will have taken the first steps towards lower prices.

Everybody is Lonesome
A MOTHER was sympathizing with her boy. She said the little fellow was lonesome, there were so many of his playmates away from home—children whom he knew the best had moved away or were absent upon visits, so the little fellow was lonesome. She was talking to a hard-headed business man of mature years, a philosopher if ever there was one, but she got little sympathy from him. At least she got only a sermon upon the subject of lonesomeness.

Of course he is lonesome, the man replied; everybody is lonesome. The old and the young the rich and the poor, the weak and the strong—everybody is lonesome. Lonesomeness caused the first savage to leave the wilderness; lonesomeness builds bridges and railroads and school houses, he said. It is lonesomeness that rules the world. If people were not lonesome they would not amount to anything.

But if the boy is lonesome now, the man went on, think what he will be as age creeps upon him. It is easier to get acquainted when one is young than when he is old, and it takes less to interest the young than the old. No man, even in the prime of life, can hope to know more than a little handful of people well enough to assist him in relieving lonesomeness, and these die or disappear and few other close associates are formed after one has reached middle life.

But it isn't a bad arrangement, the philosopher continued. It is all right. It gives one more time with himself; more time to think of himself and what he is here for. He comes to understand the world all the better by being lonesome; age, the longing for human companionship has a sweetening effect as the years fit by, turning to nectar the twilight hours that come with the descending of the sun.

The Attic Philosopher
ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL has beaten the weather man. He placed a big refrigerator, filled with ice and salt, in his attic and led the cold air down through an asbestos covered pipe into a room below. He keeps the doors of this room closed and the window opened from the top a little to permit the exit of the warm air.

The result has been a temperature of 60 degrees in this room when the mercury outside registered 100.

It is a very simple solution of a very old difficulty. Only two or three things stand in the way of everybody's doing it. The first of these is the only one necessary to mention. That is the cost of the ice.

Ice is already so high that few of us can contemplate putting it in the attic, and even if we did install the ice-box per directions we would have to sweat so paying for the ice that all the good of the low temperature would be lost.

It would be much simpler if some scientifically inclined person would invent some pills such as Alice in Wonderland took, which would make people small enough so they could creep into the family ice-box along with the milk and butter, or better still if some way could be found to lower the price of ice, so that anyone who feels the heat could afford an extra cake to sit on while he earned his daily bread.

Roosevelt Properly Ousted
WHEN IT comes to quoting Roosevelt as to what he would or would not do about the League of Nations if he were still alive, here is what he said in 1910 in accepting the Nobel peace prize for his efforts in bringing Japan and Russia to terms of peace: "It would be a master stroke if those great powers, honestly bent on peace, would form a league of peace, not only to keep the peace among themselves, but to prevent, by force if necessary, its being broken by others." That is about as near to Mr. Wilson's League of Nations as one could possibly predict seven years before we got into the war. And our experience since 1910 has fully demonstrated the need.

The Times' Family Doctor
FRESH AIR ONE OF THE VERY REAL AIDS TO WELL-BEING
By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG
A. B., M. A., M. D. (John Hopkins University)

Ventilation by means of an outdoor life and sunlight air assuages pain and relieves the human anatomy from various maladies. But you are like the little old man who spent his life faring far afield for hidden treasures. While he was away forty years in a vain search, he returned in rags to find that his deserted homestead was worth thousands of dollars. The city had engulfed it and made him rich.

True ventilation restores flabby, weak, tired, sick, anemic structures by pushing out the dark, stale, carbonized, unhealthy air.

Sunlight, proper temperature and humidity are as necessary as fresh outdoor air. The proportion of these in the air is determined by instruments. Thus a scientific doctor will go to the trouble to learn if each of his patients receives proper ventilation.

The relative humidity in buildings should be at least 60 per cent. The nearer it is to the temperature of the room the more comfortable the room will be. But if the weather outside is very cold and the amount of moisture in the room is great, drops of water will collect on the window panes, making it difficult to see through the windows.

Moisture may be imparted to the air by means of humidifiers. This apparatus consists of a container, which holds about a gallon of water, and which has a trough at its lower portion. The trough extends lengthwise beneath the coils of the radiator. In the trough is placed a felt pad which extends up between the coils. Water absorbed by the pad and evaporated by the heat of the radiator is replaced by water in the trough which is kept filled by means of a float valve. Where this is sufficient moisture in the air an indoor temperature of 62 degrees to 68 degrees Fahrenheit will be found to be comfortable.

When "Drafts" Harm.
Good effects of cold air are well known, and many persons sleep out of doors or on porches. Wherever possible in any climate, one should sleep with the windows of his bedroom open. These should be wide open so as to have a good circulation of air. Persons suffering from pneumonia are now treated in a room without heat, the cold air entering through open windows, a substance of the best results that can be employed for its cure. In certain cases prolonged exposure to cold, damp air may be injurious. Healthy persons, however, if well covered will not be injured by it.

Drafts are only sudden changes of temperature dangerous to robust persons when they cause a chilling of the body. Children and old persons, owing to their feeble resistance to constant changes should not expose themselves to drafts. A draft may do harm to a well person if he exposes himself to it when his body is in an overheated condition. It may increase the tendency to catch cold or to have pneumonia.

When the heat is bad there is a circulation of blood in the vessels of the surface of the body. Cold air, suddenly thrown upon the same, causes the vessels to contract, so that the blood is driven inward, producing congestion of the internal organs. It is not positively known that this internal congestion causes a person to catch cold, but it is one of the explanations that has been made to account for this condition.

Sunlight and Fresh Air.
Those who live in houses with doors and windows are only partially cured, and are prone to suffer with pimples, blackheads, acne, and other disabilities of the face.

Streams of sunlight and air are made to pass constantly and completely into and through all corners of rooms sweep away or destroy poisonous gases and germs which your nose and sense could never detect.

The stream of air that is constantly passing through a ventilated room not only reduces the temperature, but sweeps away harmful gases resulting from the combustion of candles, coal oil and illuminating gases. It also blows out dust, bacteria and foul odors. There are sound reasons for the belief that diseases like consumption, pneumonia and colds are transmitted by contact with persons suffering with or carrying the germs of disease, which probably are not borne for any great distance through the air. The transmission may occur when the carrier of the germ coughs, sneezes or otherwise sprays the secretion of mouth, nose or throat over the faces of persons near him in street cars, theatres or other places where persons collect in crowds.

Obviously you hold on life, your pains weaknesses and many troubles will disappear more completely if you live in a well ventilated bright home than if you drink a carboy of well thought of medicines.

Answers to Health Questions.

A SUBSCRIBER. Q.—What can I do for asthma?
A.—There are several forms of asthma. Lung or bronchial, heart, kidney and "neurophysic" asthma, due to odors, foods, plants or bad air. Have the ethnoids, turbinates and other nose bones operated on if the trouble is there. The tonsils and adenoids too, if new say. Injections of bacterial vaccines given and a periodic injection of 10 drops of a 1 to 100 solution of adrenalin or epinephrin in the attacks. This must be done by a physician. Stable doors, bottom of wood, grasses and flowers and fuel loads as rotators, fruits, fish and cereals at a cause.

Q.—What can I do for a skin itching face?
A.—There is a cooling and refreshing lotion which you can dash over your face after the morning massage.

Extract of Violet 10 grams
Extract of Rose 10 grams
Tincture of Orange 30 drops
If you do not care for a lotion, then you may find that a powder put lightly over the face after being dipped in rice powder is sufficient.

P.S.—Q.—How can I make my hair curly?
A.—What you need are pomades.

A. Apply a little of the following to your hair:
Gum arabic 12 ounce

Short Stories of the Buckeye State

OHIO'S WAR ACTIVITIES

Though Columbus has always been peaceably inclined, she was in fact born into war and has been a martial center in every war our country has engaged in since—the war with Mexico being the only one in which she cut a small figure.

The very day the new capital city placed her first building lots on sale—June 18, 1812, the United States declared war on Great Britain and though the new capital city was then, and for some months afterward remained little more than a town map, her elder sister municipality on the other side of the Scioto river—Franklin—became at once a military rendezvous for that campaign, and here it was that General W. H. Harrison collected the troops that formed his army for service in that war. The old Columbus and Sandusky road lies on practically the line of march that army took when it took the field.

One of the first acts of the war department was the commandeering of buildings in Franklin for army uses—among those so taken being the Presbyterian church, newly built, and the first building erected in Franklin county for purely religious purposes.

Cincinnati being in the part of the state nearest the scene of action, was the chief mobilizing point for the Mexican war, and all of the regimental organizations formed were formed at Ft. Washington there. Many of the component companies however enroute from the upper parts of the state passed through Columbus traveling by stage coaches.

In the civil war all roads led to Columbus. From this point the important part that Ohio took in it was directed and two important camps were located here—Camp Chase, four miles west of the state house, and Camp Thomas at North Columbus.

The forces of the state for service in the war with Spain were all organized into regiments here—the camp—Camp Bu-inell, being located where Bexley now stands.

When the federal call for state troops came following the Mexican border troubles, Ohio called her state troops for preparation at Camp Willis located on the grounds of Upper Arlington. While the Ohio troops called for service in the war with Germany were sent to different camps for training and organization the work of the state in that matter was controlled here, and while there was no camp here the city was the scene of much military activity.

OUR BED-TIME STORY FOR TINY TIMES-DEMOCRAT FOLKS

The next morning when the children awoke, Ladydear said, "Well, little folks, we are going to leave France and I wonder if you can guess where we are going?" Or course the children couldn't so she said, "We are going to England, and see London, and all the other famous places there."

Before the day was very old they were all on their way in the airplane.

It was a very short trip, the children found, from Paris over to London, but it was an interesting one.

While they were flying over the English channel, which is the wide stretch of water between England and the main part of Europe, Captain Brave told the children how, during the war, the Germans hoped to get their armies to the shore of the channel and from there hurl giant shells across the water into London, lay the town in ruins and kill thousands of people. He also told the children that, now the war was over, great engineers are planning to dig a tunnel under the channel so that folks can go in trains or automobiles, or even walk to Europe from London under the water, and save themselves from getting seasick, while going across on a boat.

The channel is usually awfully rough and if you have ever been seasick you know how badly anybody feels when they get that way.

Before they landed in London the children saw one of the giant balloons which the English had built to cross the ocean. Captain Brave told them that it was just the same size and looked like the one called R-33 which made the trip from England to America and back. The big dirigible that is the real name for the balloon, looked more like a huge ship to Jack than anything else.

The men who ran it were in little houses which hung below the big gas bag. On the back of each one of these houses was a huge propeller, which helped push the balloon through the air. Jack made up his mind that he wouldn't care much about riding in one of these balloons, unless Captain Brave was along.

FAUROT—DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS.

"The Knickerbocker Buckaroo" is a regular rip-roaring "Doug" Fairbanks picture. Many people say that it is quite the best thing the popular star has ever done, and they are far from being wrong, for certainly it is one of the most entertaining features that it has been our good fortune to see. Packed to overflowing with the Fairbanks brand of good humor, stunts and rapid fire action, this is a thoroughly worthwhile picture in every way; clean, snappy and full of thrills.

The star goes through his role as if he enjoyed it just as much as those who watch him. His personality was never more apparent, his ability to get his points over, his never failing method of scoring laughs and his athletic prowess have never been brought out to better advantage. It is Fairbanks all the way through, for the star is on the screen most all of the time, and this is a wonderfully strong recommendation for the entertaining values of the feature.

At the Faurot, Tonight

the entertaining values of the feature.

The star has chosen a well balanced supporting cast. Marjorie Daw scores heavily as the girl, is good to look at and displays a thorough knowledge of dramatic values. William Wellman is excellent as her brother, and Frank Campeau plays the role of a crooked sheriff to perfection. Albert McQuarrie does well with the bandit role, and Edythe Chapman is seen to advantage as Teddy's mother.

Scenically the feature is superb. Shots of exceptional beauty have been incorporated into the film. Such scenes would be the making of many a picture, but in this they serve simply to add to the enjoyment of watching the story unfold. Every set, every scene, every location shows the hand of an expert. And to enhance all this there is photography of the finest kind.

Mr. Fairbanks is to be highly complimented for "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo."

Lima audiences gave it their stamp of approval at the Faurot yesterday. It will be shown for the final times tonight, accompanied by the Pathe News, Paramount Photographs, Bray Cartoons and Charles Leonard Fletcher's Screen Monologue.

AMUNDSEN DRIFTS IN ARCTIC OCEAN

Famous Explorer Believed to Be North of Siberian Coast

SEATTLE, Wash., August 25.—Bound for the north pole, Roald Amundsen, Norwegian discoverer of the south pole, is at present drifting in his ice locked schooner, the Maud, somewhere north of western Siberia, according to beliefs held by the Seattle Norwegian vice consulate and Vilhjalmar Stefansson, Canadian Arctic explorer.

In planning the trip the explorer said he expected, after reaching the pole, to return either to Grant land, west of the Greenland or Melville island, which lies in the Arctic ocean north of Canada. Should he reach Melville island he probably would journey by sea to Nome, Alaska, or overland to Dawson, Yukon territory.

Two airplanes, it is believed, formed part of the Maud's equipment when she left Norway last fall and sailed through the White sea bound for the icy north. The final dash to the pole may be made in one of the planes. Amundsen, it is believed, may also fly back to civilization one of the machines.

Nothing has been heard of Amundsen since September 1, 1918, nearly one year ago. At that time the Maud was reported taking off for her motors at Dixon island, a White sea point. After taking the oil she sailed northeast into the rapidly freezing waters of the Arctic ocean.

From White sea Amundsen expected to drift east with the ice to the New Siberian islands, which lie in the Arctic off Siberia. At the New Siberian islands it was believed, the drift would carry the boat toward, if not across, the pole. Amundsen intended to use the airplanes if he found the drift would not carry him across the "top of the earth."

Amundsen in a degree followed the footsteps of his countryman, Fridtjof Nansen, in 1895-96. Nansen in the Fram started on a drift across the pole but left his boat and tried unsuccessfully to reach the goal on foot. Later the Fram drifted as close to the pole as Nansen got.

The Maud carries wireless sending apparatus but no receiving instruments. Amundsen said he would not install the receiving apparatus because he did not want to be worried by news from the outside world.

The Norwegian government this summer arranged to establish several food depots on Grant Land, from Cape Columbus to Robinson Channel, for the use of Amundsen in case he comes out by his eastern route.

It is believed toward the west and strikes Melville island he will find himself on familiar ground for he passed near Melville island when he discovered the northwest passage in 1903-06.

Amundsen expects to obtain scientific data at the pole. He will take soundings, observe the ocean drifts study the ice conditions and bring back full reports.

A Chance to Live

(By Zoe Beckley)

THE CLOUD CASTS A SHADOW.

One evening Bernie came home looking tired and ill. He had a headache, he said, and would go to bed early.

Annie made him some special tea, smoothed back his hair and looked at him with anxious willingness to "do something."

"No, it's nothing," said Bernie. "It's the spring fever, I guess. Head aches. Been eating better all day. Don't bother. I'll turn in. I want to get up early in the morning."

He did not sleep easily dressed with special care and by the house he came home late the next day.

That evening, Annie happened to be in the kitchen. She usually came Sunday, when during the week.

"What you got doing?" asked Annie. "Been out for a long time. Just stay and a day. I'll send Bernie out for a job as soon as he shows his face. He hasn't come home yet. Sit down, dear, and hold tight. Hold. Give me your hands."

It was not till Annie got through bustling about that she noticed the worried look on Aunt Margaret's face. But when Annie asked her if anything was wrong she reassured her. She just thought she'd come up for a ride on the open car been stuffy at the office.

Then Bernie came in. Kissing Annie, tossed the baby and patted Aunt Margaret's shoulder. His keen look told him that Margaret, seeing Annie had heard nothing, had left the news for him to impart. He could put it off no longer. As soon as dinner was over he went behind Annie's chair and put his arms round her, holding her so she couldn't turn round.

"Don't be scared, Nannie," he said in a low steady tone, "but old man Simons has given me the blue envelope yesterday. Now now—"

As Annie, terrified, tried to get out of her chair, Aunt Margaret had

THE ADVENTURES OF A MARRIED FLIRT

By M.K.B.

XVIII.—FRUITS OF VICTORY

When Captain Frazier was announced, I went down to the car with all the delightful sensations of a child who meets unexpected parental in-armorment of a hitherto forbidden pleasure. The day was warm and balmy and I wore one of the smart new summer frocks of my trousseau. As Captain Frazier seated me with the deft touch to a fold here and a frill there, which some men instinctively possess, I reflected comfortably that the shining big grey car made a charming background for my pale green draperies. I've known women to ruin the whole effect of a carefully planned costume by sitting in the wrong chair.

"I think it will be a good game," said Captain Frazier, as we slid off down the avenue.

"Do you refer to polo?" I inquired with a sidelong glance.

He gave me a swift smile.

"What do you think, Mrs. Tindall? I'll wager you're no novice."

"Nor you, Captain Frazier, from all reports. But I've a score to settle in a friend's name and I think my virtuous purpose will outweigh any sinister cleverness of yours."

"I warn you, I have no scruples. And what I win, I take."

"And what I win, I cast aside as of no further value," I closed the exchange definitely. "Let's talk about polo. It's so much safer."

This will be the last game for many days—years perhaps. We've sterner business at hand. By next week all our best players will be learning to shoulder a rifle.

"How quickly the war cloud has descended upon us once we are into it. Almost like some great black bird covering us with its wings and shutting out all the sunshine." I dare say soon there will be no more parties, no more dancing, no more beaux.

"On the contrary. There will be more surface gaiety and more romance than before. It is the inevitable reaction of war, repeated through the ages. Will Mr. Tindall go?"

"I hope so."

"You are patriotic?"

"I fear my patriotism is selfish. I should enjoy being the wife of a hero—especially an absent hero."

"May I hope to be permitted to share in your consolation?"

"If you are not in France," I promised gayly.

"Oh, I shall be detailed here for the war," said the Captain easily, as he turned his car into the slowly moving line of machines opposite the polo field.

The military band, in its little rustic summerhouse, was playing a popular air. Scores of smartly dressed people in smarter equipages moved lazily up and down the river drive, behind the polo spectators, who sat in their parked cars and raised gay-colored parasols against the soft caress of the spring sunshine. The river slapped drowsily against the willow bank, sending little silvery ripples from midstream. With peace and prosperity evidenced about us, our world was turning its shoulder to the ominous cloud on the eastern horizon.

"I think I'll run the car in here," said Captain Frazier, indicating an opening between two limousines. "We've a fair view."

"But Fan and the rest," I protested.

"No chance to find them in this mob," he said with a shrug. "we'll meet them for tea at the Argonne."

I glanced around a trifle guiltily. There was nothing about my position to indicate that I was a member of a large and properly chaperoned party.

The Lima Times' Fascinating Fiction Feature

TODAY—"Westward Ho," by Charles Kingsley.
TOMORROW—"Consuelo, the Gypsy Singer," by George Sand.

CHARLES KINGSLEY

Charles Kingsley was born on the 12th of June, 1819, at Holne Vicarage, under the brow of Dartmoor, in Devonshire, England. He left Holne when six weeks old, and never saw his birthplace until he was a man of thirty; yet Devonshire scenes and associations had always a mysterious charm for him.

Kingsley was said to have been an instance of the truth of Darwin's theory, "that genius which implies a wonderfully complex combination of high faculties, tends to be inherited." His love of art, his sporting tastes, his fighting blood, he inherited from his father's side, the men of whose family, were soldiers for generations.

From his mother's side came, not only his love of travel, science and literature, but the romance of his nature and his sense of humor.

When Charles was still a young child his father, the Rev. Charles Kingsley moved to Barnack rectory. It was at Barnack that the boy's earliest sporting tastes and love of natural history developed; as soon as he was old enough, he was mounted on his father's horse in front of the keeper, to bring back the game-bag.

The glorious sunsets over the Fens had great charm for him all his life; the pictures of the Fens and the life there were stamped on his mind had inspired him, in after years in writing the story of "Herculean the Wake."

Later his father moved to Clovelly; the new elements in life here, the unique scenery and the impressionable character of the people, their courage and the wild life of the men, threw a charm of romance about the place, which colored his life. This is shown in "Westward Ho" and in the song of "Three Fishers," which was not an imaginary picture, but a true delineation of what he saw again and again of Clovelly.

As a preacher, Kingsley was vivid, eager and earnest. He was keenly interested in the movement known as Christian Socialism.

As a novelist, his chief power lay in his descriptive faculties. Beside sermons, poems and addresses, he wrote the "Saint's Tragedy," a drama, and among others, the following novels: "Alton Locke," "Yeast," "Westward Ho," and "Hypatia." Many of his writings in "Christian Socialist and Politics for the People" were signed by the pseudonym "Parson Lot."

He died at Eversley January 23, 1875.

WESTWARD HO!

By CHARLES KINGSLEY

Condensation by James B. Connolly

With a hey bonny-boat and a ho bonny-boat.

Sail Westward-ho away!
With wonderful speech of Spanish gold and the vast, rich countries lying to the West, Capt. John Oxenham was home again; and not a promise he made but was increased ten-fold by his swearing henchman, Salvation Yeo.

Amyas Leigh, a stout Devon youth, was afire to take the sea with Capt. John as he listened; but his godfather, Sir Richard Grenville, said he was yet too young. Later it might be. And later he went, his first voyage being with the famous Sir Francis Drake around the world.

Following that voyage came fighting in Ireland in the company of Sir Walter Raleigh and the poet Spenser; and then an expedition with Sir Humphrey Gilbert wherein, because of mutinies, disease, ill-found ships and great storms, Sir Humphrey met his death; and Amyas came home in sadness.

At this time Amyas, with a score of other Devon gallants, was in love with Mistress Rose Salterne; but she was for no Devon cavalier. A Spanish captain of bravery and charm was dwelling in Devon till his handsom should be coming, and it was he who captured the fancy of the lovely but capricious Rose, and carried her off to Caracas, whereof he had been appointed Governor.

Whether Rose went as Don Guzman's wife or leman, no one could say. Mr. Salterne, father to Rose, and rich merchant of the port, gave a ship and 500 pounds toward the fitting out, the same to be commanded by Amyas, by now experienced in seamanship and the handling of rough men; and so he sailed on his first venture on the good ship Rose, of 200 tons burthen and 100 men, with beef, pork and good ale in abundance, and culiverts, swivels, muskets, calivers, long bows, pike and cutlasses aplenty. He was to discover the whereabouts and condition of Rose if he could, but surely to damage to his utmost what Spaniards he should find a foul of. A commission to his liking, for it was an article of faith with Amyas, as with most English rovers of that day, that all Spaniards were cruel and cowardly, even as his own great Queen Elizabeth was all white purity. With Amyas went Frank his brother, scholar and courtier, and mad likewise for love of Rose Salterne; also Salvation Yeo, his own Captain Oxenham being long dead.

Westward they sailed to tropic shores; to low wooded hills, spangled by fireflies; westward through wondrous seas where islands and capes hung suspended in air. In a wooden bight they spied a caravel, which they captured, and in her they found a store of brown pearls; also a cargo of salt hides, which smelt awfully as they burned.

Amyas sailed on to La Guayra in Caracas, finding Don Guzman not at home, but having sight of Rose Salterne, she being truly Don Guzman's wife, in a garden of the Governor's palace. In the fight with Don Guzman's men Frank Leigh was wounded and captured. Amyas was knocked unconscious, but taken safely away by his men.

Leaving fatal La Guayra far behind, the Rose thrashed through rolling seas and overhauled a long caravel, too long indeed to manoeuvre with the nimble Rose. Two galleons were also with her. Victory fell to Amyas, but a victory which left his ship so battered and his crew so decimated, that he ran into a little bay for repairs and recuperation. Here with their culiverts and swivels behind a stockade, Don Guzman came upon them, in force too strong for their shattered numbers; so, first burning the Rose, they turned their backs to the sea and marched inland.

And now came hope of glory for their Queen and for themselves great treasure in quest of the Golden City in the Kingdom of Manoa, where of friendly Indians told them. Through untrodden hills and forests they marched, past the falls of Orinoco and the upper waters of the great Amazon, from low swamps of high plateaus, wherefrom they viewed the eternal snows of Chimborazo towering above the thunder cloud and the fiery cone of Cotopaxi flaming against the stars; a region 800 miles in length by 400 miles in width they traversed. Three years of fever and cold and famine they spent on that trail, and once a good back trail loosely guarded fell to their hands; but of the Golden City never a trace.

They came upon a white maiden Ayanaora, golden-haired, tall and beautiful, treated as a princess by the Indians with whom she dwelt. Amyas was for leaving her, having witnessed on former voyages the evil influence of women among lonely men; but she by signs made it clear she would not be left. He packed her off. She came back, and she being by then far from her habitation he had not the heart to cast her adrift in the vast wilderness. So, every man solemnly pledged to treat her with honor, she came to be with them in the adventure where Amyas, his crew much worn and wasted and the desirous of heartening them up, set upon a great galleon in the harbor of Cartagena. Silently, in two canoes, they made the harbor, and, it being night, boarded the galleon secretly by her stern gallery; and after a short fierce fight the galleon, with much treasure aboard, fell into their hands. It was here in this fight that Amyas would have been killed but for Ayanaora, who came leaping from behind and knifed the Spaniard ere he could drive home the long blade.

But forty of their one hundred remained; notwithstanding which they sailed with much content in the great galleon to England. Ayanaora sailing with them, did one day burst into singing of seasons which only English sailors knew; which caused Salvation Yeo to ask questions, to which, as she acquired the English tongue, she made answer; which answers recalled to Yeo that fair Spanish lady of Panama who had run off with Captain Oxenham, and to whom was born the baby girl which was later made off with. Captain Oxenham had suffered death at the hands of the Spanish husband and Yeo himself had escaped only with many cruel scars, but the scarred old rover had spent days enough with the lovely little girl not to know now, as in a dozen ways proved that this was the daughter of Captain Oxenham and his Spanish lady, the little girl to whom he had taught the English sea songs before she was taken from them.

Homeward the great galleon ran before the south-west breeze, and proudly into Plymouth Sound she sailed one day without veiling top-sails or lowering the flag of Spain, for which they had like to get a solid shot from the Admiral of the port.

And so Amyas came home in honor and glory, but with the lovely and loving Ayanaora he would have nothing to do, she having in her too much of that Spanish blood which he hated. However, his gentle mother, under- anding better the worth of loyal virtue, took the girl to her bosom.

Once more Amyas took the sea, now as an Admiral under Lord Howard, who had gathered all of England's stout ships and seamen to fight Spain's Armada. Amyas won his share of glory in that fight and he might have come home in safety; but there was Don Guzman, who had left Rose to be put to death, even as he had his brother Frank, the one

FORD STOLEN FROM STREET IN DELPHOS

DELPHOS, Aug. 25.—A five-passenger Ford automobile was taken from East Third street, between Main and Washington streets Saturday morning. The machine was the property of a traveling salesman, whose name was not learned. The matter was reported to the local police and while the surrounding towns were notified, thus far there is no trace of the stolen car.

The owner of the automobile came to this city and called on the three local hardware stores. He parked the machine at the store of Gemke Bros. & Busch on Third street. When he returned about a half hour later, it had disappeared.

Auto thefts have been numerous in this vicinity in the past few weeks, and it is apparent that a number of automobile thieves are working systematically in the surrounding towns.

Miss Nikel, the rural school nurse, for the Allen county Child Welfare Association will come to Delphos Monday and will be here for a few days following up the work of Miss Cunningham, State Representative of the Ohio State Board of Health.

It will be remembered that Miss Cunningham visited the schools, and gave health talks and examined a few of the children in each class. Many were found defective in vision and hearing, others had diseased tonsils and adenoids, a few were suffering from malnutrition, others had weak foot arches, weak spines and other point defects, many had decayed teeth.

Nicholas Sherrick, a former Delphos and Marion township man, and well known here, passed away Friday evening at 5:30 at the home of his sister, Mrs. Hala Armstrong, near Bluffton. Word of his death was received by his sister, Mrs. Lydia Meyers, of South Franklin street. Death was due to heart trouble and the infirmities of advanced age. He had been in failing health for the past three months, and had been bed fast for three weeks.

ILLNESS UPSETS HIS NERVES AND MADE ARM NUMB

H. L. Martin Tells How Nervous Worth Did What Doctors Couldn't Do.

This was a serious case. It looked very bad for that arm. But that was before Mr. Martin banked on the power of Nerv-Worth. Afterwards—but let Mr. Martin tell the story as he did a short time ago to his Zanesville, Ohio, druggist: "Zimmer's Drug Store—I met with an accident some time ago which left me in a very nervous condition all over. I tried different doctors and could get no relief. They all said I would probably be troubled all my life."

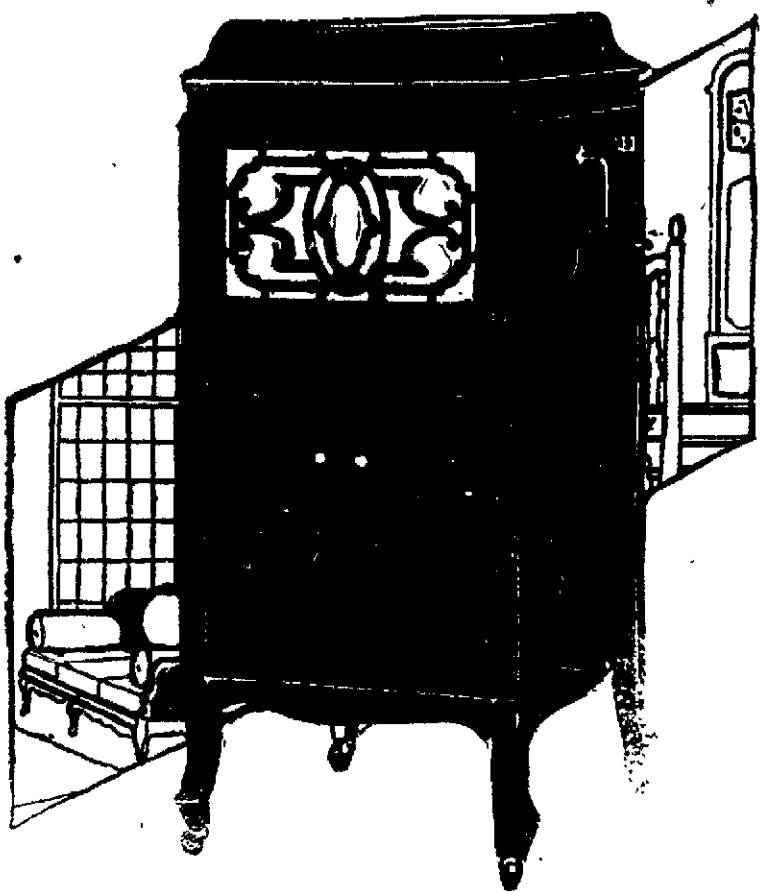

I read where Nerv-Worth had been helping so many people and decided to try it. The first bottle made me feel better and after taking three bottles THE NUMBNESS WAS ALL GONE from my arm, and I felt as good as I ever did. I surely recommend Nerv-Worth to anyone suffering from nervous troubles.

SURVEY REVEALS MANY STREAMS IN OHIO POLLUTED

Bureau of Fish and Game is Conducting Campaign to Eliminate Foulness

FACTORIES HELPING

Officials Believe Situation
Will be Corrected in State
In Two Years

COLUMBUS, Aug. 25.—Although there is an Ohio law forbidding the pollution of streams to an extent detrimental to fish life, A. C. Baxter, chief of the bureau of fish and game and assistants found in a recent survey of Ohio streams that some of them contained such a high percentage of acid that hair was eaten off the legs of horses and cattle that entered them.

The condition was discovered in Belmont county by John Travers, supervisor of the department of pollution under the supervision of the bureau of fish and game. "I traveled for 25 miles," Travers said, "along some of the streams polluted by copras water from coal mines and saw thousands of dead bass and fish of all kinds floating on the water or lying along the banks. This condition is found in 22 large coal producing counties of the state. The water is so foul that birds will not drink it and farmers' stock avoid it. If a man walked through this water before it is pumped from the mine it would destroy the soles of his shoes. At one of the mines near Bellaire where water from an old working had overflowed onto the floor, a mule accidentally walked through with the result that the flesh was burned from his legs, his hoofs and even his iron shoes suffered from the contact. This water also distributed a steel rail in less than ten days."

Animal Life Depleted
Streams which were abounding with fish 15 years ago are now completely depleted of animal life according to Baxter. Some of these streams in Belmont, Jefferson and other coal counties are characterized as "rivers of poison and stench," by the fish and game chief. "Many of the streams are fatal to snakes in a few minutes and turtles regard them with disdain," Baxter says.

However, with this condition before them officials of the bureau believe that within two years there will not be a polluted stream in Ohio. They do not expect to start prosecutions by the wholesale but to carry on a campaign of education among the manufacturers who are polluting the streams.

Willing to Co-Operate
"It is very gratifying to find that every manufacturing plant and corporation in Ohio which has been polluting the waters and which has been called upon by representatives of the bureau, has voluntarily agreed to install the system recommended by this department for preventing pollution," said Mr. Baxter. "The process is given to them free of charge and they are installing it at their own expense."

Oil pollution is remedied by using a series of tanks by means of which the oil is brought to the surface and the accumulation removed from time to time. Excellent results in neutralizing acids in steel plants have been obtained by allowing the hot acid to flow over raw limestone which removes the bad effects. The limestone costs less than $1 a ton.

Still another process has been developed by which 85 per cent of all pollution going into Ohio streams can be controlled or neutralized, Baxter declares. This process applies to all coal mining industries, sheet and tin plate mills, galvanizing mills, tanneries and leather works. It involves installing a series of vats in which the acid water may be treated with a chemical solution made from quicklime. The chemical coming in contact with the water containing the acid causes a sediment to drop to the bottom, allowing the clear water to flow to the next vat, where it is further neutralized and released fresh and free from poison and pollution.

THE INTEGRATED GOAT

The story of The Integrated Goat concerns the man who had a lawn to cut and no lawn-mower. He was too poor to buy a lawn-mower and he hated the labor of mowing, so he bought a goat. The goat saved him the labor by eating the grass, produced special milk for the baby, fertilized the lawn and ate a few tin cans on the side.

That is a crude case of integrated effort. We pay tribute to the wisdom of this sort of effort in our popular proverb, "Killing two birds with one stone." This is also a crude figure. Real scientific integrated effort would require that we kill ten birds with one stone and get the stone back.—The Nation's Business for September.

OLD-AGE PENSION MEASURE MAY BE CONSIDERED SOON

Senator McNary, of Oregon,
Sponsors Move Long Urged
by Gen. Sherwood

SCHEDULE ARRANGED

Must Have Had Weekly Income of Not More Than $6 for Year

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Congress is beginning to take up seriously the matter of providing pensions for old people. It is said that every other important country on the globe except the United States pensions its old citizens and there are unmistakable indications that before long the United States will follow the other nations in this regard. For years Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood of Ohio, the oldest man in congress, has been urging an old age pension law.

The subject has been brought up again during the last few days by one of the youngest members of congress—Senator McNary, of Oregon.

The Bill's Conditions
Senator McNary's bill lays down the conditions for the receipt of an old-age pension by any person as follows:

- 1—The person must have attained the age of 65 years.
 - 2—That person must have been a citizen of the United States for the next 20 years preceding the application for a pension.
 - 3—The person must not have had an income from any source for the 12 months next preceding his application averaging six dollars per week.
- Notwithstanding the fulfillment of the above conditions the applicant shall not be entitled to an old age pension while he is being maintained in any place as a pauper or lunatic, or while he is detained in prison after conviction of a felony or for 10 years after release from prison for such cause, nor shall he be qualified if before he becomes entitled to a pension he has habitually failed to work according to his ability, opportunity or need for the maintenance and support of himself and those legally dependent on him.

pendent on him.

The Pension Schedule
Every person fulfilling the required conditions shall be placed on the old age pension roll of the United States and shall be entitled to receive a pension based on the following schedule:

When the average weekly income of the pensioner as calculated under the act does not exceed $6, $4 per week; when it exceeds $6 but does not exceed $7, $3 per week; when it exceeds $7 but does not exceed $8, $2 per week; when it exceeds $8 but not exceed $9, $1 per week.

It is provided that the pension shall be paid in 12 equal installments each year in advance. It shall begin on the date the claim is filed and will continue from that time to the meeting to consider it.

time of allowance shall be paid in a lump sum. The pension may be increased or decreased every 12 months, whenever the pensioner's income increases or decreases, according to the terms of the schedule. All claims for old age pensions, it is provided, shall be filed with the department of the interior, together with affidavits and the secretary of interior is directed to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of the act. The old age pension bill was referred to the senate committee on pensions, of which Senator McCumber of North Dakota, is chairman. Senator McNary intends to press the measure and will insist on an early committee meeting to consider it.

BATTLE BETWEEN MERCER AND KELLAR TO BE HOT CONTEST

Local Fight Fans are Counting the Days Until Largest Fight Card in History of L. A. C. Will Be Presented

(BY JAMES F. BURBA)
Local fight fans are looking forward to the Labor Day card to be staged here next Monday night, which will be the largest and, probably the most interesting show ever offered Lima lovers of the fistie sport by the Lima Athletic Club. Everything is all arranged and fighters, fans and officials are waiting for tempus to fugit a little faster.

That the main go, between Terry Kellar, of Dayton, and Billy Mercer, of Pittsburgh and Cleveland, will be the most exciting mill ever staged here, there is not a doubt. Both boys are out to win this battle, and each will exert every ounce of energy toward that end.

According to Jimmy Dunn, who handles Mercer, this lad is very desirous of handling Kellar the K. O. as it will be another step up the ladder toward a match with Harry Greb who got the newspaper decision over Mercer, back in 1916, when both boys were being looked after by Reddy Mason.

Some touts around this city declare that a battle staged between two men who have already fought has the appearance of being a fixed affair, or words to that effect. That being the case, we wonder what they will offer when they know that Mercer and Kellar have met before in a six round no decision contest.

It is an opinion that does not mean anything, and it seems to be the opinion of fight promoters as some of the best battlers in the country have met each other in the squared circle more than once. According to many local fans, it would have been a good idea to have let Teague and Gary stage their go in Sydney, as the loser of that battle would have fought much harder when pitted against the other in this city. However, in order to keep peace among fight patronizers, and the proverbial knuckers, Matchmaker Wildoner had Dave Sandow pitted against Teague in the Sydney mill.

True, Sandow and Teague fought to a draw there, but that does not indicate what might have happened had Sandow have been placed in the ring with McHenry here. Old Marvin Hart once got the decision over Jack Johnson. Tommy Burns came along and knocked the puddin' out of the Louisville fighter, then Lil' Arthur happened up and handed Burns the sleep potion. This Teague-McHenry-Sandow argument won't get anyone very far.

We are in receipt of a letter from Charles (Chuck) Swan, who served in the same company of Tanks in France with us, and who before going into service was sports writer on the Cleveland Press. Swan touts Mercer up as a wonder, and says unless Terry is capable of taking a wonderful lot of punishment the protege of Jimmy Dunn will put him to sleep early.

It's a pretty safe bet that Kellar is able to take all the punishment Mercer can offer. If you had seen the mill between Kellar and Greb at Dayton recently you would know this. Greb hit Kellar with everything except the ropes around the ring, and each time Terry came up for more.

Out of nine battles fought this year, Mercer has five knockouts to his credit, one decision, and three no-decision bouts.

Following is his record for 1919:

Jack Fleming	K. O.	1

Champions and Near Champions Who Helped Entertain Sailors of New Pacific Fleet

Left to right: Ad Wolgast, Joe Rivers, Billie Papke, James J. Jeffries and Jack Root

The war demonstrated that Uncle Sam's fighting men like fighting, whether on the battlefield, on the seas or in the squared circle. When the new Pacific fleet arrived in southern California waters Los Angeles provided a variety of entertainment for the sailors. One of the most popular "shows" was that given by well-known boxers. The referees were men who are known to every boxing fan. Here they are—a former heavyweight champion, James J. Jeffries; a good light heavyweight, Jack Root; a former middleweight champion, Billie Papke; a former lightweight champion, Ad Wolgast; a lightweight who battled the best of them, Joe Rivers, and former featherweight champion, Abe Attell.

HOLIDAY ENJOYED BY REDS SUNDAY

Last Vacation Men of Moran Will Indulge In for Some Time—Giants Win From Pirates

The razing Reds rested remarkably well today, after their rambling tour around the eastern circuit, during the course of which they have vastly increased their lead over the Giants.

It was the last holiday that the team will have for some time and the boys made the most of it. Manager Moran spent the day with his family at Atlantic City, whither also some of the other athletes wended for a last dip in the briny before the season closes.

Sherwood Magee, Morris Rath, Eddie Gerner, Rube Bressler and Ray Fisher visited their home folks, while the rest of the boys remained quietly and peaceably in the confines of the Majestic hotel, gathering strength for the remainder of their journey.

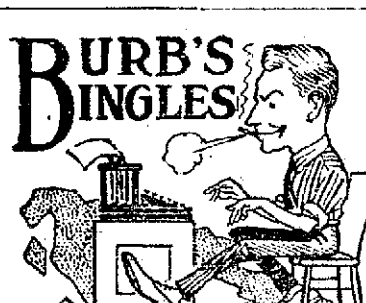

The first-placers have a right to a little time for recuperation for they have been strictly on the job since coming east and have surpassed even the brightest expectations.

In the past 11 days, the team has played 15 games against the four clubs of the eastern division and has won 12 of them, cleaning up on every one of the four teams encountered. This is going at an 800 clip on foreign fields, and there is no other club in the league which can maintain that pace.

NEW YORK, August 25.—After a desperate pitching duel between Toney and Carlson, with honors even, the Pirates lost in the tenth, when Zimmerman, who made a two-base hit, scored on Carlson's bad throw to first on Frisch's sacrifice. Pittsburgh . . . 000 000 000 0—0 New York . . . 000 000 000 1—1 Carlson and Schmidt; Toney and Gonzales.

STRONG PLOWS NECESSARY

BURB'S BINGLES

After a day of rest the Redlegs should go about some today.

The Reds might have had a rest yesterday but it was a tiosome day for local fans who attended the game here.

Mercer says he must knock Terry Kellar from the ring.

Yes, the former Kaiser said he was going to east Christmas dinner in Paris, too.

Its about six to one and a half-dozen of the other.

Saith the Sage of Hawg: Crick: "You can always get something for nothing. Look at black eyes."

Well, well, once more we can hop a street car in Lima, and drop a nickel in the box.

Yes, but who wants it.

The Giants slipped one past the Pirates yesterday, while the Red rested.

The Reds can afford to rest.

That's more than you can say for the Giants.

Anyway, there's little rest for Muggsy McGraw, right now.

Yes, and we'll bet there's little rest for his family when he's home.

White Sox won and the Tigers lost yesterday.

That gives the Kid Gleason outfit a little firmer hold on the top rung.

The Dodgers got 21 hits off Card twirlers yesterday.

Now watch the batting averages change.

The Colonels won a doubleheader from the Indianapolis outfit.

Columbus whipped Toledo.

Cincinnati is surely baseball mad.

Speakers at a poultry show in that city, forgot all about chickens in their talks and boosted the Reds.

Citizens of Ciney want Pat McGraw to run for member of the school board.

Fans favor his nomination for mayor.

But who wants to be mayor? Queen City?

If you think every person in L. is busy, just take a slant at the crowds watching the various construction work on the main drags.

"COMEDY OF ERRORS" IS STAGED AT LOCAL PARK

Not the One Written by Mr. Shakespeare, However, But One Played by Two Baseball Teams Here Yesterday

(BY JAMES F. BURBA)
Another "Comedy of Errors" was staged at the local ball yard yesterday afternoon when "Our Boys" whipped the Springfield White Sox by the score of 8 to 5. There were sixteen errors made by the two aggregations. When the score boy hung the tallies of the first inning each team had three mishaps checked against it.

The contest was loosely played from start to finish, and was about as exciting as a funeral. Pierce, pitching for the locals allowed 10 safeties while the home guards secured nine hits off Duffy. That lad, however, was very liberal with his transportation, and permitted five limabites to get on first without any trouble. Pierce allowed only two passes, and succeeded in innvelling 10 Clark County boys into whiffing the atmosphere.

Spicity and Malloy were the only players to swat the ball for extra bases. The former hit for a double, while Jack went him one better and stopped on third.
The Springfield aggregation started scoring in the first inning and got two counters across. The locals came back and placed one opposite their name. In the fourth "Our Boys" showed another tally across.

The fifth saw two more registered for the visitors, while the locals counted three in the sixth, and a like number in the seventh. The Clark county gang put one over in the ninth and thus ended the contest.

HARRY GREBB WINS GO WITH BRENNAN
PITTSBURG, Pa., August 26.—Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, easily defeated Bill Brennan in a ten-round bout at Forbes field Saturday. The Pittsburgh boy gave away about 20 pounds in weight, but had everything his way. Brennan was bleeding at the nose in every round, and his left eye was cut in the tenth.

Greb won every round except the ninth, when he slowed up and got to swinging wildly. Brennan was game and took a bad beating.

Today's Markets Are Printed

Today

The reports given in The Lima Times are taken from THE CLOSE OF THE MARKET FOR THAT DAY by the Associated Press, the most reliable and efficient news gathering organization in the world. The markets all close before The Lima Times goes to press, and the day's figures are sent over the leased wires right into the Times' office and in a short time are in your hands through the medium of Northwestern Ohio's Home Newspaper.

Every time you hear any one say that any paper has a better market report or a later one—nail the story. It can't be done. Morning papers give the same market as The Lima Times THE NEXT DAY, and no other Lima evening newspaper has the reliable Associated Press re-

INTERURBAN AND STREET CARS RUNNING

O. E. TRAINMEN AND COMPANY AGREE IN JOINT CONFERENCE

Likely That Linemen Will Reach Settlement With Employers

MOULDERS STILL OUT

Preparations Made to Meet Any Possible Trouble With Foreign Element

The trainmen's strike for nine days tied up practically the entire system of the Ohio Electric Railway company, including the local city lines, was definitely settled Saturday night, and the interurban trainmen took their usual runs yesterday, while the city lines resumed operations today.

A meeting of the executive committee of the trainmen was held in Springfield Saturday afternoon and night which resulted in a compromise. J. J. Pogue, president of the local carmen's union, immediately got in communication with workers here, and a meeting was held in the Trades and Labor Council hall yesterday afternoon.

The compromise was placed before the trainmen here, and was passed upon, as satisfactory to the workmen.

New Scale in Effect.

The new scale which became effective August 16 is as follows: Interurban trainmen—First three months' service, 41 cents; next nine months, 45 cents; next year, 48 cents; third year 50 cents. The men asked for 50, 53 and 55 cents. They compromised with 41, 43 and 45 cents, which is about a three cent increase over the old scale.

Employees of the local lines will receive 38 cents per hour for the first three months; 42 cents for the next nine months; 45 cents for the second year; and 47 cents for the third year. They demanded an increase of 10 cents in each class. They were receiving 38, 40 and 42 cents per hour.

The miscellaneous employees are to be granted permission to organize, and will be affiliated with the trainmen. At first the trainmen declared the company would have to recognize the miscellaneous employees. However, in the southern division where approximately only five miscellaneous workmen are employed, the trainmen came to the conclusion it was very foolish of the carmen to remain out on account of such a small number of employees.

At a recent meeting these trainmen of the southern division voiced their sentiments, and it is the opinion of officials, this was the real cause for the early settlement.

Linemen to Meet.

The striking linemen of the company will hold a meeting this evening, and it is very probable a definite settlement will result. Linemen were in communication with Resident Manager J. B. Dugan this morning. It is understood, and ascertained whether or not the recent offer of 50 cents per hour made by the company remains good.

Indications are the acceptance of this amount will be voted upon at the meeting this evening, and if it passes the company will be notified, and the men will return to work immediately.

Moulders' Strike.

The moulders held a meeting this morning in the Trades and Labor Council hall at which reports from the various committees were heard. The general situation was discussed, but no move toward effecting a settlement was made.

Ready for Trouble.

In the meanwhile the plants are remaining closed, and preparations to cancel orders are being made. Police today are anticipating some trouble, which they think will be caused by the foreign element. According to Chief Roush several threats have reached the department, and preparations are being made to take care of any disorder which may arise.

A meeting of the moulders will be held tomorrow at McCullough's lake and it is anticipated the whole situation will be discussed there. Officials of the plants are hopeful over the outcome of tomorrow's session.

The strike of the telephone linemen remains the same, according to information received this morning from leaders of the union, and officials of the company.

St. Rose Alumni To Banquet On Tuesday, Sept. 2

The annual banquet of the St. Rose Alumni association will be held on Tuesday evening, September 2, at the Elks club. The banquet for a number of years has been held several days following the June graduation of students from St. Rose high school, but owing to the fact that so many of the young men members of the alumni were overseas this year, it was thought better to postpone the banquet until September when all would be home to enjoy it.

The affair promises to be one of the largest and most successful ever held, and the entertainment committee have spared no efforts in making the banquet a success. Following the dinner, a short program will be enjoyed and the remainder of the evening will be devoted to dancing, for which an eight piece orchestra has been engaged. Miss Kathleen Corcoran is secretary of the alumni association.

NOMINATIONS FOR TEACHERS' BOARD ARE NOW IN ORDER

F. B. Pearson, state superintendent of schools has sent a communication to Superintendent C. A. Arganbright, which states the new Teacher Requirement law requires the election of two teacher members of the retirement board. The election of the two members is to be arranged for by the superintendent of public instruction. Candidates for these two positions must be nominated by petition of not fewer than 100 prospective members of the system.

It is not too early to set about making the nominations. These petitions will be received by the superintendent's office up to noon September 10.

Recruiting Men For Mexican Border Service

First Lieut. R. H. Long of the Toledo recruiting station has been sent to Lima to take charge of the local recruiting in this district which comprises six surrounding counties. Lieut. Long has been twenty-three years in army service and is well qualified in the work in which he is engaged. He will be assisted by Sergeant Oscar Woodall, John Drennon and James Reines, who form a permanent recruiting party who will visit the smaller towns in this district.

Orders have been received to discontinue enlistments for the air service, and to specialize for the next few weeks in enlistments for the Mexican border service.

East Siders Call A Community Club Meeting

On Tuesday evening, August 26, at the Lincoln Park fire station, a permanent organization of a "Community Club" for the residents of the east side of Lima will be effected. At a recent meeting of east side citizens it was decided to organize a community club. All those living on the east side are cordially invited to attend Tuesday night, and bring their friends.

ENJOYED FAMILY DINNER

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Strawbridge, Shawnee township, was the scene of a pleasant gathering yesterday when Mr. Strawbridge and his sister, Mrs. J. C. John, of Elida, entertained their children and their families.

At noon a sumptuous dinner was served in the grove surrounding the home and those who enjoyed the repast were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. John, Ralph, Adrian, John and Miss Blanch John, of Elida; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones and wife, Harvard, Ill.; E. S. John and family, of Williamstown, O.; W. J. Edwards and J. E. Edwards and family, of Gomer, Mrs. Noah Specht, of Dunkirk, Don John and family, H. E. Haddell and family, C. E. Strawbridge and family and Ernest John and family of Lima and C. A. Strawbridge and family, beside Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Strawbridge of Shawnee.

LIMA MERCHANTS TO HIT MAIL ORDER HOUSES ONE BLOW

At last the Lima merchant is able to "put one over on" the big Chicago mail order houses. It is announced officially by the chairman of the Dollar Day division of the big combined selling festivals of tomorrow, Suburban trade day, that thousands of dollars worth of staples will be wrapped and carried out of Lima shops at prices less than can be found quoted in the most liberal of these big disturbers of legitimate retail trade.

"Competition is so keen" noted Chairman Roy B. Gregg, of the Dollar Day division of the big combination sale of tomorrow, "that every sane merchant in every line represented in our association is going to slash everything on his counters and shelves to get his share of the business. For we are convinced now that Wednesday is going to see one of the biggest crowds of shoppers on Lima streets ever brought here by train, trolley, auto or old Dobbin."

This rapidly advancing cost of living is getting in the blood; the shrewd buyer, whether city or country is going to lay in everything he can get at these sacrifice prices. And the settlement of the street car strike has put the necessary finishing touches to what will undoubtedly be "a perfect day."

Shoppers in Lima stores today undoubtedly noticed the extreme cordiality of the proprietors and sales people. They are relieved and optimistic, and accept the strike settlement as an augury of success for their day tomorrow.

Readers of the Times-Democrat will do well to study the advertising pages of the paper carefully today and tomorrow; for it is announced that some bargains will be there announced that will never again be duplicated, under the circumstances. It is stated authoritatively, too, that there will be goods in dozens of lines sold tomorrow at prices that cannot be duplicated by jobber or wholesaler; indeed that certain stocks would be snapped up by the jobber himself at the very prices put on them at the sale to tomorrow's buyers. There will be a very great variety of goods put out for sale; in addition to the specials to go at the uniform price of $1.00. The official end of summer suggests an unloading all along the line.

All Paths Lead To State Fair

COLUMBUS, Aug. 25.—Paths from all points of the state led to Columbus today for the opening of the Ohio state fair. With good weather prevailing the annual show likely will break all previous attendance records, officials predict. The fair will close Friday night.

Trains, trucks and wagons poured into the fair grounds yesterday conveying live stock, prize fowl and exhibits. Entries in all departments are the largest in history, officials say.

The reproduction of Chautauque is the principal feature of the entertainment program. Two hundred soldiers will participate in the "show" which will be staged at 8 o'clock tonight. A pageant in which 2,000 school children will take part also is on the day's program.

PERRY TWP. PICNIC IS BIG EVENT FOR WEDNESDAY, AUG. 27

Fully 600 persons are expected to be in attendance at the 17th annual Perry township picnic to be held on next Wednesday, August 27, at S. F. Logan's Grove, stop 5, on the Springfield division of the Ohio Electric. The affair is eagerly looked forward to by the residents of Perry township, and has always proved one of the largest social events of the summer.

The address of welcome will be delivered by C. L. Meckling, president of the association. S. C. Bidle will give the morning address. In the afternoon, following the picnic dinner, the diplomas of the eighth grade graduates will be presented to them. The fourth annual junior agricultural fair will be held in connection with the picnic.

In the afternoon a good musical program will be given, and in addition games, races and contests will be held in which boys and girls, young and old, will participate. Music throughout the day will be furnished by the Alstaeffer family band of Calro.

LIMA CHAUTAUQUE GROWS IN INTEREST

The great success of Sunday's chautauque program evidenced by the enthusiastic comment of the large crowds of people who attended both afternoon and evening sessions, promises fine things in store for the remaining four days of the chautauque. Every minute was filled with splendid entertainment and the audiences were most appreciative. The chautauque company carries 1,200 chairs of their own, but they estimate that fully 1,500 persons attended last night's program, as it was necessary to bring in several hundred additional chairs.

The "Fighting Americans," consisting of five soldiers and two sailors, were repeatedly applauded by the audiences. They are advertised to entertain the audience just as the soldiers were entertained while overseas, not in a grand manner, but in regular "soldier boy" fashion. Dr. Graham, of Sandusky, a noted chautauque lecturer, spoke in the afternoon on "What is Religion?" and in the evening, Frank Branch Riley, another lecturer, spoke of the northwest.

This afternoon the Hruby's Czech-Slovak quintette gave a splendid performance, and will also be on this evening's program. Tonight's lecture will be given by Dr. Cecile L. Griel, who, although American born, for two years was in charge of the Italian hospitals at the front. Upon returning to America Dr. Griel was a passenger on the ill-fated "Ancona" which was torpedoed the second day out. After seven hours in an open boat, where she saw 250 perish, she was rescued, the only American survivor.

That folks like the location of the chautauque grounds, corner of McDonald and Elm streets was unmistakably evidenced by the comments of everyone who has attended. It simplified matters greatly to have the tent so near the center of the town, so that everyone has a convenient way of attending.

LIGHTING PROBLEM TO GO TO COUNCIL FOR A SETTLEMENT

Mayor Simpson Expresses Determination to Have Illumination at Once

Regulation of Taxicabs In Lima Will Also Come Before the Solons

Council at its adjourned meeting this evening will discuss the street lighting situation and will endeavor to arrive at some conclusion whereby the city may be furnished with adequate light, according to information gathered in city hall this morning.

Mayor Simpson this morning declared he will not make any recommendations concerning the present conditions. He did say, however: "We are hoping that the striking linemen and the Ohio Electric company will get together very soon, but we are going to have light, no matter what they do."

When asked what his plan for lighting the city is, the mayor refused to state. It is the opinion of many, however, that Mayor Simpson will take the affair into his own hands if council does not act upon the matter this evening.

That the situation will be brought up tonight, there is not a doubt, as last Monday night, following the regular meeting of the council, T. M. Berry, councilman-at-large, declared something will have to be done about the lights, and he said this Monday will be an excellent time to bring the matter before the body.

Besides the light question, the operation of taxicabs in Lima will also come before the body. It was recommended at the last meeting that a charge of $1 per month be made taxicab operators, and the safety director have jurisdiction over them.

Taxicab Regulation.

It was later decided to have an adjourned meeting at which this question will be settled. It is also Councilman Stiles' plan to force the taxicab operators to charge a standard fare which will in all probability be fixed by council.
